A. The Construction Industry Force Account Council-Inquiry

Chair Clemens opened this discussion to the Commission and answered the following questions:

I. Force account limit

Question 1: In order for the Commission to review the accounting procedures of a participating agency that exceeded the force account limit, must the work undertaken by the agency be performed by force account?

Answer 1: Yes, according to the Public Contract Code (PCC) 22042(b) it would have been done by force account.

Question 2: Will the Commission review the accounting procedures of an agency that contracts out work without bidding in excess of the limit(s) set forth in PCC 22032, pursuant to PCC 22042(b) exceeded the force account limit?

Answer 2: No, the Commission will not review the accounting procedures according to PCC 22042(b), but under the PCC 22042.5 they will review the practices of the agency if an interested party presents evidence that the agency is not in compliance with Section 22034.

II. Review agencies accounting procedures

Question 1: May an agency use force account to perform a portion of the work on a public project that exceeds $60,000?

Answer 1: No
Question 2: Will the Commission review the accounting procedures of an agency that self-performs a portion of the work that equals under $60,000 on a public project and contracts out a portion pursuant to PCC section 22042(b), where the total amount of the project exceeds $60,000?

Answer 2: No, because the force account work did not exceed $60,000 on the project.

Commissioner Bernacchi mentioned it may violate the formal bidding process and the agency may run into issues with PCC 22033 regarding bid splitting.
